

I think a nice buy now or soon for myself in the near future — at 6 P.M. today (12/5/96), HARP went to Scranton & HARP brought me a 12" West Bend electric frying pan — one of her Christmas presents to me

As I see it now, I will breed from only six pairs this coming year, and each pair will be allowed to raise only two rounds. The birds will be mated on January 24th.

as far as the young birds go that I raised this year, I don't believe that I will use any of them as breeders in 1987.

father, I will fly them fairly rigorously in the spring and do some more culling before I decide which one I will use as freedom in 1988. Is it a bad idea to wait until they are 2 year old before allowing them to raise young?

Between hawk and bad weather, I wasn't able to get in much flying this fall, although I do have two kits of three birds each that are doing nicely —

— 3 Young cocker that died 9:06
on 10/29/86

- 3 young here that did 8:40 on 10/31/86.
